Elba's state Supreme Court Justice Terry Butts is getting pressure to resign and run for Attorney General. As news stories have reported, he is giving this consideration, but just how seriously is something only he can say. At this writing there has been no announcement from Butts, nor anyone who would be a close supporter in such a campaign. If we could report anything at all on this matter, we would. Yet these same folks reasoned James would appoint a person to the Supreme Court who would be "all right." If you don't fully understand this reasoning, it is probably because you are as innocent of political maneuvering as yours truly.

We have been told not to worry about paying back all the bond money Governor James wants to borrow. Apparently the most politically popular proposals will get on the ballot this year, in one form or another, but not the whole bunch. With both James and his main Democrat opponent harping on getting rid of the portable classrooms, we expect -some type of school bond issue for capital improvements. It will vary from what was first proposed by the Governor, but it is anyone's guess how much it will change. Unless the wind changes, don't buy a lot of stock in asphalt companies this year, 'cause the proposed highway bond issue is in trouble "not enough for my district, yet too much for the others."

It is great living in Elba, Alabama. Heck, some folks live and/or work in Washington, D.C. with Bill Clinton. It has been interesting to watch the weekly magazine, U.S. News & World Report follow our president these last few weeks. His picture has been on the front for three weeks running. First, it was a report on the "Clinton Style" and the surprising way he has changed American politics. The second week it was "Is He Finished?." Now the third issue has him "Defying Gravity" plus an article explaining "Why powerful men take risks for sex."

Elba native to bring award winning choir to Enterprise, February 7th

The Coffee County Arts Alliance is proud to present a special performance of The George Washington Carver High School Choir on Saturday, February 7, at 7:30 p.m. In his eighth year as music director, Henry Terry, native of Elba, will bring the group of 80 young singers to the Enterprise High School Auditorium. Throughout the years, the choral music department has been a wariety of styles encompassing all periods of music. They have become especially noted for an accurate performance of music by African-American composers.

Mr. Terry is using the medium of choral music to instill the importance of hard work, perseverance, dependability and loyalty to members of the choir.

He is a native of Elba. He holds both the Bachelor of Arts and the choral music department has been a both the Bachelor of Arts and the

In 1990, he was sought and invited to teach class piano and music theory at the Carver Creative and Performing Arts Center in Montomery. In 1991, the principal of Carver High School, challenged Terry with the task of rebuilding the almost defunct choral music program. Carver High School had a rich legacy which had not been maintained During the 1991-92 school year, the task was begun. Although it seemed difficult and hard, the choir grew from approximately 14 members to 100 in the first two years. Today, the choir continues the grand tradition by singing concerts and programs throughout the Southeastern region and the East Coast of the United States to significant acclaim. Junior High Betas find themselves with as many opportunities to keep busy with club activities as do senior Betas. The Junior Beta at Zion Chapel High School has had an extremely busy year. At Christmas, the club adopted a family and gave presents. The presents were bought with the funds earned from chances sold on a ham which was donated by Winn Dixie of Enterprise. The club members also sold various kinds of candy. In the spring the club will participate in a community activity and take a field trip. No definite dates have been set for these activities. Melanie and her third grade classmates are in the process of learning their multiplication tables, and one night last week Kathy and I both almost pulled our hair out trying to think of some way to get Melanie to grasp what she had to do. I told her that every single person in the world had to learn their multiplication tables, while Kathy worked for hours trying to help Melanie learn the tables for the various numbers. She did finally learn a few, but we are still taking any and all suggestions for additional help.

HIGH SCHOOL BAS" ETBALL SEASON WINDING DOWN

naments set to begin this weekend and the sun-regional games set for next week. How well a team does in a tournament shouldn't make or break a season. After all, all the teams in the tournaments have already played over twenty games, and that is a better indication of a team's success than how a team might do on one given night. Any way, here is a look at the area teams of winning the area title go down and how they look heading into the area tournaments...

ELBA (8-9) closed out last week's action with a five-game losing streak and is certainly not headed into the post-season party playing its best they were upset by the Rehobeth Rebels 59-58, in Rehobeth. ball. The Tigers have been hurt in recent weeks by player suspensions, player dismissals and injuries, and the combination has left them with only 8-6 record, and a final area mark of The Lady Tigers fell behind earsix varsity players. It won't be easy for the Tigers to win the area tourna2-2. Rehobeth improved to 4-14 ly and trailed 23-18 heading into ment, or even make it to the finals. However, something tells me that the with the win and closed out the players that are left will give it 110 percent, and that is all you ask, win or area schedule with a 1-3 slate. lose. Maybe the streaky Tigers will begin another one, soon!

NEW BROCKTON (13-10) will be hosting the area tournament, and while it is always great to be playing at home, the Gamecocks won't up-tempo offense to grab a surhave an easy time in what is a very competitive area. The Gamecocks have played well in spurts this season and have a real shot at making a trip to The Tigers settled down in the sec-Troy State for the region playoffs; however, the Gamecocks are still a very ond quarter, and put the clamps on Troy State for the region playoffs; however, the Gamecocks are still a volume team and have shown that some nights they can struggle no matter the competition. The hunch here is that New Brockton is through experition. The hunch here is that New Brockton is through experition. The hunch here is that New Brockton is through experition. Rehobeth refused to let Elba menting and will come out this weekend and start their trek to the region

KINSTON (2-16) will have all its players back for the area tourna- and closed to within 40-38 heading ment, and while that will certainly help the Bulldogs' chances of advancing, the returning players won't be at full speed, and that will keep the 'Dogs from really running on all cylinders. Kinston is much better than its record indicates, and the Bulldogs have shown in recent weeks that they can compete with any team on their schedule. It won't be easy, but Kinston could pull off an upset or two and wipe away some of the pain from what has been a disappointing season.

ZION CHAPEL (6-13) has seemed to run into a fourth quarter rut the past couple of weeks, and maybe the Rebels are beginning to tire out after playing with everything they've got throughout the season. The Rebels play as hard night in and night out as any team in the state, but seem to be running on empty late in the games, and it has shown lately as their record has taken a nose dive. If the Rebels can put four quarters together they can still beat anybody on any give night.

BRANTLEY (17-3) has a very good basketball team, but in recent weeks has struggled a little, and it will be interesting to see how the Bulldogs react to the tournament. The Bulldogs have all the tools to win, and some nights look like state championship contenders, while other nights the inexperience shows, and the Bulldogs look very beatable. Don't let their record fool'ya, Brantley will have to play well to win in the tournament and it won't be easy for the Bulldogs on any night out.

The girl's teams are also getting ready to begin tournament play, and while the girls often don't get as much ink as their conterparts, the action will be just as intense when they hit the court. The Elba Lady Tigers (5-15) will tangle with Rehobeth in the opening round of the area tourney, and while the Lady Tigers boast two wins over the Lady Rebels, both games night with a 49-31 loss to the Opp have been close, and the third time should be just as tough. The question Bobcats, in Elba. with the Lady Tigers will be whether or not the girls are ready for the season to end after a long, tough season. The New Brockton Lady Gameto 8-7, while Opp improved to 10cats. cocks (9-10) have probably the best chance of making it out of the area as 11 with the win. any team around. The crowds have really been great at the Youth Basketball League games at the new Elba Recreation Center. The center is filled to capacity for almost all the games, and the noise makes the kids play even harder than ever. C'mon down one Saturday and catch some of the action.
